

PRIVACY POLICY

IT support systems and all documents furnished by all users of the service, whatever their type, and resulting from their processing, remain the property of their respective transmitters.

The data managed and stored on the SGTi[®] platform are strictly protected by professional secrecy (Clause 226.13 of the French penal code).

In compliance with Clause 34 of the modified French law No. 78-17 of January 6th, 1978 pertaining to information technologies, databases and civil liberties, EGIS Informatique undertakes to take all necessary precautions to preserve the security of data and namely to prohibit their deformation and damage. EGIS Informatique refuses to communicate any data to unauthorized persons, respecting the access rights attributed to users, as agreed with the platform's steering committee.

In consequence, EGIS Informatique undertakes to respect, in absolute fashion, the following obligations and to ensure that they are respected by its personnel:

- To not make any copy of documents and information support systems made available on the collaborative SGTi[®] platform, irrespective of the transmitter, except in relation to its proper provisions to ensure the security of data and those required to carry out its services;
- To not utilize the documents and data processed to any other ends except those specified in its contract;
- To not divulge said documents and/or data to other individuals or legal entities, whether public or private;
- To take all measures to avoid all fraudulent use or misuse of the computer files, throughout the entire duration of its contract;
- To take all measures, and primarily in regard to physical security, to ensure the conservation of the documents and data processed, throughout the entire duration of its contract;
- If the context of service implementation so takes into account:
 - To reconstitute all data storage media in their entirety in compliance with the arrangements stipulated in its contract and in compliance with the access rights attributed to users, throughout the entire duration of its contract.
